Gill St. Bernard's Alma Mater

When we look on fields of snow,
When in spring the grasses grow,
Safe and free our life remains,
Here at school where friendship reigns;
Yet we reach out to the world,
To distant lands our minds unfurled.
As the world shines through to bring us light,
Gill St. Bernard's may our hearts be bright.

After the parade of years,
The ceremonial season nears.
Then we see how long the climb,
Yet how swift the flight of time –
Books and concerts, games and plays,
The search for truth, the service days.
Here a web of friendship forms a bond,
Gives us strength to meet the world beyond.
